Great Harvest Bread Co. Owner Ross Umbdenstock considers himself a jack-of-all-trades when it comes to store operations. Whether he's behind the counter, in an office or busy baking bread, he said he does it all.

Bread-and-butter business

Great Harvest owner discusses community philosophy, challenges of being a young business owner

By Kelly Moore
SPLASH STAFF WRITER

Great Harvest Bread Co. franchise owner Ross Umbdenstock became a business owner at the age of 24, when a family friend asked him to partner in opening the Liberty Lake store. That venture opened the door for an array of community involvement that keeps him rooted in all-things-Liberty-Lake.

Last year he became the sole owner of Spokane's South Hill Great Harvest location and someday hopes to start up a third location. All the while, he said his main marketing strategy is giving back. The Splash recently caught up with Umbdenstock to learn a little more about his philosophy and what life is like in his shoes.

Q. I know Great Harvest does a lot to stay involved in the community. What are some of the things you guys do?

A. This year, we did a fundraiser for the Central Valley Kindergarten Center and one for Greenacres Elementary School where the kids went around door-to-door and sold loaves of bread and then a portion of those sales went back to the school. I think between the two we ended up raising about $6,000.

Q: Wow. That's a lot of bread.

Diaper drive concludes Saturday

A Stuff the Bus Diaper Drive is being held through Saturday at all 10 Walgreens locations in the Spokane area in support of the efforts of Inland NW Baby to provide diapers to local families.

Inland NW Baby said the largest need is for diapers in sizes 3, 4 and 5, but all are accepted — including open packages. Pull-ups and wipes are also sought.

Order a pizza, help toddler facing heart surgery

A fundraiser for the family of a local 3-year-old scheduled for heart surgery Monday will be held Wednesday at Pizza Hut, 1330 N. Liberty Lake Road.

The benefit is being organized by Reeno Walsh, who works next door at The UPS Store. Pizza Hut is donating 20 percent of all orders from 3 to 8 p.m. Wednesday to Zekharya's Heart with a printed voucher. Vouchers are available at The UPS Store and Pizza Hut for use while ordering.

The money raised will go to help defray the family's medical costs. Zekharya's single mother is taking three to four weeks off from work to care for her son, Walsh said, adding that donations may also be made directly to the family using the "send money" feature at paypal.com and the e-mail address, zekharyasheart@hotmail.com.

City administrator candidates introduced tomorrowBy Kelly Moore
SPLASH STAFF WRITER

Liberty Lake officials will begin the last phase of the search for a new city administrator this weekend. The process will kick off with a public meet-and-greet with candidates and the community at City Hall from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Interim City Administrator Mike Cecka declined to name the three finalists until Friday's event. The finalists will introduce themselves and spend time getting to know the community over light refreshments at the mixer. The public is encouraged to attend.

The hiring process will continue Saturday with private interviews. Cecka said interviews could be conducted by as many as four panels — the mayor, the Council, the city staff's department heads and a group of community leaders. Each panel would assess the candidates, sharing perceived strengths and weaknesses with the mayor, who will make the final decision.

The city administrator, under the direction, supervision and authority of the mayor, is the executive officer and liaison officer for the city. This position directs the administration of city government functions and services and provides leadership in the long and short-term goals of the city. The chosen candidate will also make recommendations to the mayor and City Council for action.

Official action on choosing a candidate won't be made public until Tuesday's Council meeting. According to the posted job description, the mayor's selection must be confirmed by a majority of the City Council.

Cecka said he received 56 inquiries, 47 resumes and 34 complete applications for the position. Mayor Steve Peterson and Council members began narrowing the pool Feb. 28.

News BriefsCVSD announces school choice application process

Students interested in attending a school outside their residential attendance area may apply to "choice" into another school in the Central Valley School District for the 2012/13 school year. The process is open to district residents and to students residing outside the Central Valley School District.

Parents, guardians or emancipated students interested in transferring to another school should complete and submit an Application for Student Transfer form to the principal of the building to which the student wishes to transfer, by April 13 for resident students or May 1 for non-residents.

Each school will follow district policy by conducting a lottery within five school days of each deadline to select students for available choice (transfer) slots. Letters of approval or denial will then be sent to each student.

Eleven Central Valley schools are closed to choice for the upcoming 2012/13 school year, due to capacity limitations: Adams Elementary (except all-day kindergarten), Broadway Elementary, Greenacres Elementary, Liberty Lake Elementary, Progress Elementary, Sunrise Elementary, Central Valley Kindergarten Center, Bowdish Middle School, Evergreen Middle School, Greenacres Middle School and Central Valley High School. These elementary and middle schools will not be accepting any written requests for transfer. Central Valley High School may consider requests for transfer from students residing within the Central Valley School District.

For more information call 228-5400. Visit www.cvdsd.org to view Board Policies #3130 and #3141 or for a copy of the Application for Student Transfer form.

Ballots due Tuesday

Spokane County voters have until Tuesday to turn in ballots deciding Measure No. 1, an extension of the Spokane Public Facilities District's sales and use and hotel/motel taxes. The measure is being requested to fund improvements to the Spokane Convention Center and Spokane Veterans Memorial Arena.

Ballots must be postmarked by Tuesday or dropped off by 8 p.m. that day to an approved ballot drop location, including the Liberty Lake Municipal Library, 23123 E. Mission Ave.

CV moves to final stage of $1.75M purchase

Building will house Spokane Valley Tech programs for area students

By Kelly Moore
SPLASH STAFF WRITER

District officials have wrapped up an internal review and inspection of the site for a new Valley-based skills center campus, and the positive results moved the Central Valley School District Board of Directors to green light the finalization of the $1.75 million purchase at its regular meeting Monday.

“The district has completed its due diligence, and the administration believes it will meet our needs and be valuable asset,” Assistant Superintendent Jay Rowell said. “Concerns have been reviewed and found acceptable for moving forward.”

The site, known as Spokane Valley Tech, is a former Rite Aid store at 10722 E. Sprague Ave. and 10812 E. Sprague Ave. in Spokane Valley. It will house career and technical education programs for area students through cooperative agreements with the East Valley, Freeman and West Valley school districts. Central Valley will act as the consortium's host district. Spokane Valley Tech will operate as a branch campus of Spokane-based NEWTECH Skill Center.

Rowell said an appraisal performed by Lembeck Appraisal and Consulting March 1 valued the property at $2.36 million. He noted additional findings showed a new gas meter and new HVAC system will be needed for a portion of the building. Otherwise, the roof, electrical systems, landscaping and parking areas were found acceptable.

A concurrent, collaborative planning effort is under way to identify the programs of study to be offered at Spokane Valley Tech. Aerospace manufacturing, sports medicine, cosmetology and fire science are among the programs being considered, Executive Director for Secondary Learning and Teaching Jean Marczynski said. A steering committee will make final recommendations on program offerings by June 1.

“This is a tremendous opportunity to establish and strengthen partnerships with businesses and future employers,” CVSD Superintendent Ben Small said. “We’ll be connecting kids to the careers and vocational occupations they are considering through internships, job shadowing and hands-on programs. Spokane Valley Tech will offer flexible program and schedule options in growth occupations for students in the Spokane Valley.”

The decision Monday authorized Small to move $25,000 into escrow, and the sale should close within 60 days. Financing for the building purchase and tenant improvements will come from the sale of $3.25 million in non-voted bonds to be issued by Central Valley School District. The bonds would be repaid by revenue generated from state funding and lease revenue from current tenant West Valley School District, making this a cost-neutral initiative, Public Information Officer Melanie Rose said.

The Central Valley School Board also approved the hiring of Architects West of Coeur d’Alene for the Spokane Valley Tech project. Construction is expected to begin in mid-August. Spokane Valley Tech will be fully operational and open to students for the 2013-2014 school year, Rose said.

In other business, Small urged the board to consider partnering with the city of Liberty Lake to develop the vacant lot owned by the district next to Liberty Lake Elementary School. He said the property could potentially be used for youth enrichment until the district is ready to build on the site, but specific ideas for the site are still in the works.

A hoppin' good time

Liberty Lake community celebrates Easter in style

By Kelly Moore
SPLASH STAFF WRITER

The community celebrated Easter last Saturday with a morning full of family activities. The Liberty Lake Kiwanis hosted its annual pancake feed and Community Egg Hunt volunteers wrapped up another successful year with hundreds of registered participants. The Splash got an early start to the day to catch the inside scoop on work that goes on behind the scenes — and some of the great moments shared out in the open. A morning's timeline:

7:28 A.M. — All's quiet in Liberty Lake, save for the crunching of frosty grass under the feet of a few volunteers at Pavillion Park. About 20 bags of Easter eggs, crates full of stakes and rope, decorations and prizes are all being unloaded to their appropriate areas of the park.

7:46 — The first stakes, used to designate age-group areas, are driven into the ground as other volunteers begin rolling out caution tape to create marked off areas.

"We'll have a lot more volunteers showing up in just a little bit to scatter eggs in all the areas," volunteer Mic Curry said. "It's not so much of a hunt as it is a litter pick-up, but we sure have a lot of fun."

The Easter bunny is nowhere to be found, but rumor has it he'll be making an appearance soon at the pancake feed just across the street.

7:57 — Kiwanis President Scott Draper greets the first family at the ticket table for the club's annual pancake feed at Liberty Lake Elementary School.

"Enjoy your food," Draper said as they made their way to the serving line. "Eat a lot!"

8:00 — "I'm going on a butter run; does anyone need anything else?" Kiwanis member Jeanne Harmer says on her way out the door.

The kitchen is bustling with more than a dozen volunteers stirring eggs, stirring batter, flipping pancakes and getting ready for the early-morning rush.

8:03 — "Here comes the Easter Bunny!" a Kiwanis member shouts from back in the kitchen.

The guest of honor is suddenly in the middle of the cafeteria making his way to greet early eaters. No one seems to have seen which way he came from. He must be pretty fast.

8:15 — Families finally outnumber Kiwanis volunteers as a steady line forms where Linda Dockrey and Charmaine Peterson are serving up pancakes, sausage, eggs and orange slices.

8:18 — Robbie Reyes, 8, gets some one-on-one time with the Easter Bunny.

"I have a question for you. Did you hide this?" Reyes asks pulling an egg from his pocket. "You did!"

8:20 — While filling up cups of apple juice, Kiwanis member Pat Lutzenberger recapped the Kiwanis' schedule for the morning.

"We started up at 6 a.m.," she said. "That way we have food ready by 7:30, then the crew eats and we're ready to go when people start showing up."

8:25 — Mayor Steve Peterson whips out his cell phone to take a photo of the bunny holding his family's Chihuahua sidekick, Pecos.

8:31 — The Easter Bunny steals this reporter's notebook, expressing the need to relay an urgent message: smiley face.

8:35 — The Easter Bunny insists on sitting down for an exclusive interview with The Splash. Questions are largely limited to "yes" and "no" answers, but the bunny is able to convey a few facts: He loves Easter and carrots. He's been very busy. He has to go to bed early today because he has a big day tomorrow.

8:48 — After posing for a picture, Janeya Sadler, 3, shows off her hopping skills to a rather impressed Easter Bunny.

9:10 — As a line forms near the entrance, the Easter Bunny takes a seat at the ticket table to try his hand at accounting. He quickly admits it isn't his forte and moves on to pose for more photos.

New tenants, food service put Meadowwood Campus near capacity

By Kelly Moore
SPLASH STAFF WRITER

With the Liberty Mutual move of 800 employees wrapped up March 26 and Providence Health and Services announcing the move of 250 employees in early fall, the Meadowwood Technology Campus is nearly full. Greenstone purchased the near-vacant 250,000-square-foot office building in 2010.

Coinciding with the increased tenancy, Seasons Café opened for breakfast and lunch March 19. The café, based in the onsite kitchen and dining area, is open to the public Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

"It's not your average cafeteria food," owner Jamie Lombardi said. "We're more gourmet and offer a better quality product than you typically see in this setting. We use lots of fresh vegetables and fine ingredients."

The café operates with a rotating menu offering a different pizza, soup, specialty salad and hot entrée each day. Lombardi said she tries to mix things up with Italian day, Asian-food day and home-style foods, but so far the build-your-own taco bar has proven to be an instant favorite. In addition, patrons may opt for the build-your-own burger or sandwich option available every day.

"We were attracted to the opportunity because we like Greenstone," Lombardi said. "It's a reputable business, so we know they'll be around for a while. We also liked the hours. Monday through Friday is hard to come by in this industry."

Lombardi and Seasons Café chef Sharon Degg have worked as a team for eight years at places like Huckleberry's Market and Klinks on the Lake in Cheney.

A section of the café is sub-leased to The Dark Side Espresso Bar, offering specialty coffee drinks and baked goods Monday through Friday from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Greenstone Managing Director of Commercial Development Wayne Frost said "very little" space was available at the campus. A tenant improvement would be involved, but about 8,000 square feet is basically finished and available, he said.

"It was fantastic to see the building fill up so quickly," Frost said. "We worked really hard at that, and people are just really drawn to the campus."

In response to the popularity of the area, Frost said Greenstone is evaluating further development of the campus with additional buildings.

"It's still in the concept phase right now," Frost said. "I imagine it would be six months to a year before we see anything on the ground."

The property already includes about 1,000 parking spaces and extensive walking trails, tennis and basketball courts, a fitness center, picnic areas and an outdoor amphitheater. Original plans for the 70-acre property announced at the time of purchase detailed a full build-out to accommodate 700,000 square feet of manufacturing and office space.

In the meantime, Frank said the facility would continue to be available for com-solutions that will enable HALS on UH-60 Black Hawk helicopters.

"Parker is supplying us with the thermal management systems that will provide cooling and heating for our critical HALS electronics," SNC's HALS program manager Bob Lombard said in a press release. "The systems we will be supplying the Army will be installed in extremely harsh environments with high levels of vibration, sand, dust, and heat. We have been very happy with Parker's thermal management products and support over the last several years as we have progressed through a series of HALS development and flight testing phases."

Parker Aerospace's thermal management systems organization is located in Liberty Lake.

Baseball team has rough week

The Central Valley baseball team dropped two doubleheaders in GSL action last week as the Bears were swept by Shadle Park and Mead and saw their season record fall to 2-8.

Against Shadle Park, the Bears lost the first game 6-5 after rallying from three down in the top of the seventh inning, only to see the Highlanders push across the winning run in the bottom of the frame. The Bears were led by Ryan Leone, who had two hits. The second game of the doubleheader featured Shadle Park posting seven runs in the first two innings and cruising to a 7-2 win. Trevor Cook had two hits for CV, while Jake Hochberg took the loss on the mound.

Against Mead, the Bears had two tough, one-run losses, as Mead swept the doubleheader by the scores of 3-2 and 6-5. In the opening loss, the Bears took a one-run lead into the bottom of the sixth only to see the Panthers rally for two runs and pick up the win. Dustin Dach had two hits, including a triple, while teammates Cook and Andres Morales also pounded out two base hits. The second game was equally close. This time, the Bears rallied in the bottom of the sixth inning to tie the game and force extra innings before Mead posted a run in the top of the eighth inning to pick up the win. Morales again had two hits, including a triple, while Dach and Leone also had two base hits. Brady Simmelink took the loss on the mound.

Softball team loses game

The CV fastpitch softball team dropped a 2-1 decision to North Central in GSL action on Monday. The Bears, who suffered their first loss on the season, scored their only run in the second inning and saw North Central pick up lone runs in the fourth and fifth innings to pick up the win. Carissa Sdao picked up the loss on the mound while Tia Pau led the offense with three hits, including a double.

Boys golf wins tourney

Troy Smith tied for first place as he shot a 74 (losing in a playoff), while teammate Nick Rheingans finished in a tie for fourth place with a 76 and Joel Christensen finished tied for ninth while carding a 77.

PROFILES/COMMUNITY

A: (laughing) Yeah, the kindergartners actually did a really good job of selling bread. They sold over 1,700 loaves of bread, so that was a really big thing.

Q: OK, I know it doesn't stop there. Where else in the community are you involved?

A: Well, we got started in the community with our Easter honey bunny sales. We donated $2 of every honey bunny to the Spokane Humane Society. Great Harvest likes to do stuff for the Yard Sales, the Liberty Lake Days. We also donate coffee to the Liberty Lake Kiwanis every week and help them by sponsoring their golf tournament. We also provide quite a bit of donations, not just to food banks in the area but also to local non-profit organizations. We donate a lot of auction items to people's fundraisers. Just recently we helped sponsor the library's edible book contest. I think that's about it.

Q: Do you guys help out with Blessings Under the Bridge too?

A: We do, actually. Apparently we were one of the first people to agree to donate to her way back when they got started so we've known them for a while. It's a great organization to be involved with.

Q: Well it sounds like you guys have plenty to keep you busy. What is the philosophy behind your giving back?

A: That's kind of my marketing, to tell you the truth. We like to get the word out there and we like to make people aware of Great Harvest. It always seems to get a better response when you do that in partnership with nonprofits that are out there doing great things.

Q: So you seem kind of young to be a business owner. How did you get started?

A: The lady who owned the South Hill Great Harvest store, Jacquie Sanchez, actually approached me to help her open this store in 2007. For the first 18 months she was the majority owner and then I was able to buy her out of this store. About two years after that, I bought her out of the South Hill Great Harvest as well. (Laughing) I was kind of her exit strategy, I guess.

Q: Were you a Great Harvest employee before?

A: No, I was actually digging holes in Montana for a landscaping company, and I decided I didn't want to dig holes for the rest of my life, and the plan was to go back to graduate school. I started talking to my parents about it and in that process, I learned Jacquie had already approached my parents and my twin sister saying she wanted me to help her run this. It was kind of like either go to grad school or open a business. I just chose opening the business. It's always been my dream to own my own restaurant, so a bakery wasn't too far off.

Q: So in the five years since you started out on this venture, what are some of the unexpected lessons that stand out in your mind?

A: Every day, there's something unexpected. Employees seem to be your biggest asset and your biggest liability at the same time. When everything's going great, things are all smooth, but of course when things go south it's really bad. It seems to all hit at once.

I've definitely learned to juggle tasks and become a jack-of-all-trades — delivery driver, accountant, marketing guy and personnel manager. Whatever you want to call me, I'll answer to it. Baker, that's another one.

Q: Do you have a philosophy for the way you manage?

A: Yeah, actually our mission statement is painted on our wall here. It's run fast to help customers, bake phenomenal bread, create strong and exciting bakeries and give generously to others. We try to incorporate that not only into the business side of things, but also the employee side too. I like to have it fun in here with upbeat music. We want you to be tapping your foot or snapping your fingers when you walk in the door. We try to go for a whole customer experience.

Q: What is a typical day in your life like?

A: Oh boy, I don't really have a typical day. It can be up at 2:30 in the morning to come in and do baking. Normally, when I do that it's a 2:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. day where I try to move into marketing and other paperwork in the afternoon. When I don't do baking — which isn't nearly as much anymore — I'm normally here by 7 a.m. or so and do paperwork or deal with employees or marketing. Like I said, I'm a jack-of-all-trades. I could be fixing the oven; you never know. (Laughing) Whatever fire needs to be put out, that's what I'm doing that day.

These days I usually only do baking to fill in or when there's a big holiday coming up, like Easter. I'll have to go back to the South Hill store at 6 tonight and I'll probably literally work till 10 a.m. tomorrow morning doing honey bunnies.

Q: I also heard you like to ride your bike to work.

A: I try to. That might change soon because I'm just about to close the sale of my condo in Liberty Lake. But I like to do pretty much anything outside. I have a backpacking trip planned this week for the Colville National Forest. I try to be active, but Great Harvest consumes a lot of my time.

Q: Do you have any hobbies?

A: Cooking. I like to go home and make a nice dinner when I can't get outside. That's pretty much it. It's work, cooking, and trying to stay active outside.

Q: Talking about the Spokane store, that's a fairly new venture for you, right?

A: It is. The store has been there for about 30 years. I remember going there as a kid, so that was pretty fun to go from being the little kid riding my bike in to get the free slice of bread to now being the guy handing the slices out. I just bought it in August. It's about three times the size of this one and does about twice the volume. It was a good venture for me. We started doing most of our production out there and shipping it out here, so that helped consolidate the two stores.

Q: So are you busier since taking over that one, or is it about the same?

A: Yeah, I'd say I'm probably busier — which I didn't think was possible — right now since it is so new. But I think down the line it'll allow me to step back and delegate duties to managers because I can't be in two places at one time. (Laughing) I'm learning that very quickly.

Q: Do you have any plans for the future?

A: Yeah, I want to do another store up north. That's my next venture, but I don't know how soon that's going to happen. I haven't even started looking, but it would be fun to have a third one up north. From there, I have no idea. It was my goal to have three by the time I was 30, but I think we might have to push that back till I'm 35 (laughing).

and volunteers for numerous events throughout the year.

The organization has also purchased library furniture, computers and resources. Last year, to supplement the library's shrinking budget, the Friends funded all additions to the non-fiction section, Marleau said.

This year's Spring Tea event is themed "Pink Perfection" and will include a silent auction and fashion show from Apricot Lane, a Spokane-based boutique. The fashion show will feature celebrity-inspired fashions, jewelry, handbags and accessories.

Silent auction items are still being compiled, but already include artwork, various gift baskets and children's items.

Anyone interested in volunteering for the event or joining the group is welcome to attend the next regular meetings held on the last Tuesday of every month at 6 p.m. in the library. For more information, visit www.libertylakefriends.org or e-mail FriendsLLLibrary@gmail.com.

Admission is $20 per person or $10 for children 13 years old or younger. Tickets are on sale now and can be purchased by contacting Marleau at 954-3264. Tickets will also be available at the library's open house held today, April 12, from 6 to 8 p.m. in celebration of National Library Week.

The open house will feature music by the New Criterion Banjo Orchestra, refreshments, balloons and introductions and presentations to various library resources. Attendees may also win a chance to borrow a Nook or Kindle, a prize that comes with a free book download. A presentation will also be made on the library's entry into the Community Information Network later this year and how that will increase Liberty Lake's access to more than 500,000 items free of charge.

To prepare for the open house, the library will close for one hour at 5 p.m. today only. For more information, call the library at 232-2510.

Find success, reliability by gaining people's trust

By Marlene
"Marti" Hollenback
SPLASH GUEST COLUMN

People will be encouraged to trust you if you have a reputation of being honest, reliable, honorable, responsible and dependable. My dad, Mark K. Hollenback, was an automobile dealer from the late 1940s until his passing in 2005. He always focused on the characteristics listed above, and it is extremely important to me that I carry on his legacy as I operate Dishman Dodge Chrysler. My personal emphasis on trustworthiness coincides with my belief in following the Golden Rule.

In addition to the characteristics of trustworthiness listed in the paragraph above, there are other synonyms, such as: authentic, certain, real, true, genuine, legitimate, sure, good, solid and steady. Trusting in someone means you feel the person is honest and will not lie, cheat or steal from you, and the person is reliable and behaves with integrity. Finally, trustworthiness in a person makes you feel he or she can be counted on to do something they've said they would do, will not shirk from duties and will take personal pride in what they do.

Dishonesty can easily tarnish a reputation to the point that others consider you untrustworthy. If you are caught lying or deceiving people, they will consider you an untrustworthy person. It is then very easy for that negative reputation to spread. Once others consider a person as untrustworthy, they will tend to be cautious in dealing with that person or most likely will avoid him or her altogether. A person who is unreliable cannot be trusted to do things. Likewise, an irresponsible person also cannot be trusted because he or she does not seem to care about how things are done.

When we are trustworthy, people can rely on us. We can be counted on to do what we say we will do. If we make commitments, we follow through on them. Being trustworthy also means that our words are aligned with our intentions. We seek to maintain a level of transparency that lets other people feel clear about who we are and what they can expect from us. We treat the trust of others as a sacred gift.

People prefer to deal with those they can trust. They like to shop at a store where they know the owner or sales clerk will deal with them honestly. Supervisors like to have employees they know will be reliable and show up on time each day. They also like employees who they can trust to take responsibility. If people trust you, they will give you more opportunities than others.

Being trustworthy is an admirable character trait. Others will respect you more and want to continue relationships and dealings with you. Being trustworthy doesn't mean you will never let others down. Rather, it is an attitude and a pattern of behavior that honors the trust placed in you. Being trustworthy provides benefits from the way people deal with you as well as builds your own self-esteem. If you are honest, do as promised and are capable of taking on responsibility, you will feel good about yourself. You'll feel you have integrity and cannot be influenced by negative, outside forces trying to sabotage your trustworthiness. You'll feel self-respect knowing that you are worthy of others' trust.

As Scott Hamilton said, "The high road is always respected. Honesty and integrity are always rewarded."

Marlene "Marti" Hollenback is co-owner of Dishman Dodge Chrysler in Spokane Valley. She wrote this as part of a special monthly column series highlighting the PACE (Partners Advancing Character Education) trait of the month that runs in local partner publications.

Letters to the Editor

Letter misses mark on issues with Obamacare, contraception

In response to Tom Agnew's March 22 letter to the editor, "Support women, not bullies":

Mr. Agnew, you addressed those "who lie about Obamacare requiring use of contraceptives when in fact the law simply guarantees women have these options," and "those who say the problem is contraception while facts and science credit birth control for causing historic lows in unwanted pregnancies and related issues like abortions."

First, those of us who object to the HHS mandate do not claim that Obamacare requires the use of contraceptives. Nor is the issue to ban or not to ban contraceptives. We are aware the issue at hand is our fundamental right to religious freedom and its free exercise thereof, one that no government can grant or take away. Just societies recognize this inherent right and protect it. This mandate is a direct affront to our constitutionally protected right to religious liberty, and this is why many, even non-Catholics, are outraged. If this administration can succeed in forcing Catholic institutions and many individuals to violate their conscience by requiring them to fund services which they find morally abhorrent, who will be next?

As to the statement regarding the "benefits of contraception," the Guttmacher Institute's (supporter of Planned Parenthood) own data demonstrate that greater access to contraceptives has contributed to more unplanned pregnancies and, therefore, a greater "need" for abortions. Furthermore, most people know that the pill can cause blood clots, strokes and heart attacks, but many are not aware that it can cause an increased incidence of cervical cancer, liver tumors and triple negative breast cancer. The World Health Organization has classified estrogen/progesterone pill as a Class I carcinogen, especially in young women who use it for four years prior to their first pregnancy.

While this issue transcends contraception, as a fellow Catholic, I respectfully recommend that you research the church's teaching on contraception. You might be surprised. When I finally read Pope Paul VI's encyclical, Humanae Vitae, I was overwhelmed by its beauty and the love and humility with which it was written. In it (and the other encyclicals on this topic), I found a profound love and respect toward women and families, a recognition of each individual's inestimable worth and inherent dignity, and an understanding of the human person that surpassed anything I have encountered elsewhere.

Christine Brown

Human life is precious and 'wanted'

If Kerry Masters ("Paying for the disagreeable," April 5 Splash) believes that paying for meat in kids' lunches is intrinsically immoral, she shouldn't be forced to go against her conscience. There are enough of us who would donate the money privately so that she shouldn't have to do so. If she wants to donate her money for contraceptives, she is free to do so. However, none of us should be forced to pay for anything we find morally repugnant. To be sure, moral repugnance is far greater than being merely "disagreeable."

While I take no issue with anyone's objection to eating meat, I do find it unsettling that there are some who would have less respect for human life than animal life and see no intrinsic difference between the two. And although there are those of us who believe that human life is so precious that we prefer to err on the side of caution in protecting human life from the point of conception (especially since from that moment you have a full, human genetic code, distinct from your mother's, and are metabolizing and growing), no one is suggesting eggs have a soul.

Dr. Bernard Nathanson, co-founder of the National Abortion Rights Action League (NARAL), admitted his group lied about the number of women who died in "back-alley abortions" when testifying before the Supreme Court in 1972. "We spoke of 5,000-10,000 deaths each year. ... I confess that I knew the figures were totally false ... it was a useful figure, widely accepted, so why go out of our way to correct it with honest statistics."

Every child is wanted — by someone. If a woman finds herself in a situation where she doesn't want or can't care for her child, there are countless of us who would joyfully love and raise that child. Aside from this, our personhood does not depend on someone else "wanting" us. Every child has a right to live; every child deserves a chance. Human life is far too precious to be discarded.

9:17 — K-Kid Ashlen Raskell, 11, finishes her breakfast and puts in some volunteer work on the fly. After asking a Kiwanis member where she can help, she's put to work bussing tables.

9:26 — Egg Hunt Co-Chair Alisha Davis takes a break from her breakfast to highlight some of work that went into the event. She said stuffing and bagging eggs alone took about 50 man-hours over the last couple days.

9:40 — The kitchen is heating up while pancake feed coordinator John Niece flips another round of pancakes on the griddle.

"It's a lot of work, but it's really not too bad because everyone already knows their routine and the whole thing runs really smoothly," he said.

Behind him, another volunteer mixes a 10-pound bag of pancake mix with a drill.

9:54 — Steve Peterson, also a Kiwanis member, rolls up his sleeves and goes to work scrubbing pans.

9:57 — At this point, Kiwanis member Pat Dockrey says the group has gone through 60 pounds of eggs, 800 sausages and 45 pounds of pancake mix.

10:03 — While posing for photos with the Easter Bunny, Dominick LaBella, 3, gets to the bottom of a few nagging questions: "Do you have a house? Where is it? Do you like broccoli? Why do you have big shoes?"

10:05 — The Easter Bunny waves goodbye as he's ushered out and over to Pavillion Park. On the way out the door, Draper says he's collected about 120 tickets so far.

10:07 — As the bunny makes his way to the egg hunt, a passing driver honks as he hangs out his window to yell, "Easter bunny!" Another passing driver waves.

10:11 — At Country Vista Drive, the Easter Bunny takes over crossing guard duties to direct his growing entourage safely across the street and into the park.

10:19 — Inside the park, now bustling with volunteers and a few families, event Co-Chair Wendy Van Orman visits each egg-hunting section with a special delivery: two silver eggs, a golden egg and a grand-prize golden egg. She gives a few last-minute instructions to volunteers before families start filling up the areas around each section.

10:30 — A steady line is formed at the event entrance set up near the park's back-stop. Each family is checked for registration tags, given a flier with info on the event sponsors and directed to the appropriate area.

10:35 — The Easter Bunny is busy with a line of kids waiting to say hi and get a picture taken.

10:41 — Kids form a solid line around the roped barriers to each section. Many point out the prizes they're eying as they plot out their plan of attack.

11 A.M. — Like clockwork, the countdown begins, and everyone in the park joins in. "3...2...1... Go!"

11:03 — With the exception of those in the toddlers' section, just about every egg, prize and piece of candy is picked up.

11:06 — Families find each other and form small huddles as kids review their bounty — opening plastic eggs, counting Hershey's kisses and comparing prizes. Volunteers make their rounds making sure the plastic eggs are returned for next year's event.

11:14 — A few lucky kids pick up prizes in exchange for golden eggs at the information booth located under the park's pavilion. Grand prizes include gift baskets, toys and a giant toy car.

11:23 — The Easter Bunny is nowhere to be found. As quickly and mysteriously as he first appeared earlier in the morning, he seems to have vanished. Of course, he did say he was going to need to rest up for tomorrow.
